

Journalism

Yarrow Hogan

Submitted by Darleen Principe

Yarrow Hogan is an exceptional student journalist who has dedicated the past three semesters to covering the campus community with great care and integrity. She has a knack for finding the stories that need telling. She loves to put in the work, even when it calls for late nights and long hours. While working toward her associate degree in biomedical science, she has simultaneously climbed up the ranks in The Channels newsroom, working her way up from a staff reporter in spring 2022, to serving as editor-in-chief for spring 2023. Yarrow possesses a drive and commitment to journalism that has truly strengthened The Channels, and she will undoubtedly make her mark as an impactful storyteller going forward in her career.